THE RUFFLED RUSTLER

His full name was John Walters Henderson and he was the owner of the famous Bar-H Ranch. But during the last twenty years of his life people always called him "Old Man Henderson." It was a sign of affection and esteem for a most remarkable man of the Old West. There are a variety of stories told about him and someday I hope to collect all of them and put them into book form. This one concerns Pete Ringo who was once called the uncrowned king of the rustlers.

They say that Pete turned rustling into a fine art and a paying business. He had his experts change brands and produce forged bills of sales. It all happened in the year that the tick hit the cattle in our southwest. The health authorities just didn't know what to do about it. Herds that were infected were confiscated and destroyed. Without compensation to the owners. So that as a result many a small ranch faced bankruptcy.

Late that summer Old Man Henderson started on the trail with a large herd of cattle. His destination was Railhead Junction. A lot of people turned out to see him leave and wished him a lot of luck. In fact, this was the only herd leaving Pecos Country for the journey northward. Sam Gifford was his trail boss and they took their time enroute.

It was at the end of the first week on the trail that Sam Gifford made a report to his boss.

"We're being watched. There's a rider behind us keeping an eye on our every move. What do we do?"

"Nothing," replied Old Man Henderson. "Probably one of Pete Ringo's boys. They won't make a move until we cross the Snake River. Then try to stampede our herd and take it all away from us."

"So we get ready for a fight," said a determined trail boss. "We got some good gun hands with us this time."

"If they try to take the herd, let them," was the unexpected answer. "Now get my men together and I want to make this clear to them."

They were certainly the most startled bunch of cowboys that ever rode the range. At first they didn't believe their own ears, but they did have faith in their boss. He must have some plan in that mind of his. And past experiences proved he generally could do the unexpected.

Things were quiet for the next ten days but they were still being followed by that rider. And then they crossed the Snake River and trouble began. A group of about a dozen men started shooting into the air and stampeding the cattle. When it was over the trail boss and his men were minus one herd. But they followed orders as much as they itched for a good gun fight.

And Pete Ringo was right proud of the way he had handled this job. Not a bit of fighting to be done. Like taking candy away from a kid. No trouble at all. And then he and his men and the herd waited outside of Railhead Junction. Sheriff Jim Coughan and a large group of men came out to greet him. They checked and changed brand and the forged bill of sales.

"Have you a Health Clearance Certificate?" asked the sheriff.

The answer was in the negative and the county veterinarian did his stuff.

"All diseased," was his report. "Got to wipe this herd out."

That was only the beginning of the bad news. The men were informed they were all under arrest.

"We got a law on our books and you get fined for endangering the health of good stock," explained the sheriff. "Your fines total to ten thousand dollars. Until paid you stay in jail. All of you."

Since Pete Ringo didn't trust banks-his friends had robbed a lot of them - he carried his cash in his saddle bags. So the fine was paid. With one remark.

"There's something fishy about all this. But I just can't figure it out."

Later when the facts were known it became a good classic story to be told and retold. Old Man Henderson had deliberately taken all his sick cattle and permitted them to be "rustled." Somehow a law was passed that the informer of a sick herd could get all the fines. And every cent went to help the small ranches in Pecos County.

How to HYPNOTIZE

ENTIRELY NEW METHOD

Until recently the process of hypnotic induction was largely based on trial and error methods which succeeded mainly with subjects who were highly susceptible to hypnosis in the first place. The truth is that these highly susceptible subjects make up a very small percentage of the population. That is why amateurs and beginning hypnotists have so often been disappointed in their attempts at trance induction. Now, however, recent scientific research has developed ENTIRELY NEW METHODS that are not only sure fire in their results but quick and easy to achieve! For the first time, these new methods are presented in HOW TO HYPNOTIZE in language that you can easily and successfully follow on the very first reading!

SHOWS YOU STEP BY STEP

This book — which has been acclaimed by doctors and psychologists — is guaranteed to give you all the know-how necessary to induce the trance state in others. It not only explains the latest discoveries in hypnotic induction, but it shows step by step, move by move, exactly how to bring on the trance; how to transform the trance into deeper and still deeper states; and how to terminate the trance quickly and effectively without any dangers whatsoever. You are even given alternative methods, so that you can actually chose the one that suits you best.

USED BY DOCTORS
The book that is being used by doctors and psychologists to learn hypnotic induction is now available to you

$1.98 FOR ONLY
